BODY

Operational notes, deal summaries, doctrine text, and all running copy at document scale.

Editorial. Infrastructural. Luxury through restraint.

Large Margins

Generous whitespace is the primary signal of control and confidence. Never crowd the page.

Minimal Decoration

No ornamental elements. Thin dividers and rules only when they serve structure, not style.

Intentional Whitespace

Space between elements should feel considered. When in doubt, add more breathing room rather than less.

Strong Alignment

Every element anchors to a clear grid. Inconsistent alignment reads as amateur regardless of color or type choices.

Monochrome Dominance

Black, graphite, and off-white carry the majority of every layout. Olive appears sparingly — never as a fill, only as an accent.

Thin Grid Systems

1px rules in gunmetal. No shadow, no glow, no border-radius beyond 2px. The grid is infrastructure, not decoration.

MARK IDENTITY

The Eastern Landmen mark is the field operations insignia of the ELO system. Engraving-style heritage badge with hound illustration — communicates craft, terrain knowledge, and tactical groundwork. Distinct energy from the ELO mountain emblem.

Where the ELO mark reads institutional and infrastructural, the Eastern Landmen mark reads grounded, skilled, and field-ready. Both are operational. The distinction is posture.
